

DRAPER SENTENCED TO LIFE

Execution Date for Harry F. Powers Is Set for March 18th

"Mass Slayer" Tried for Slaying Massachusetts Divorcee

NEW TRIAL IS DENIED

Man Also Indicted in Murder of Widow and Her Three Children

CLARKSBURG, W. Va.—(AP)—Harry F. Powers was sentenced to die on the gallows at the penitentiary at Mountsboro, March 18, for the murder of Dorothy Pressler Lemke, Northboro, Mass., divorcee.

A motion for a new trial was overruled.

The state charged that Powers slew Lemke, after luring her from her home on a pretext of marriage.

He also was indicted for the slayings of Mrs. Asta Buick Elcher, Park Ridge, Ill., widow and her three children.

Sheriff's Slayer Given Life Term

Miller County Jury Finds Sam Day, 20, Guilty of Murder

TEXARKANA.—After deliberating less than two hours, the jury in the case of Sam Day, 20, returned a verdict of life imprisonment at 10 a. m. Friday. The case had been on trial in Miller circuit court since Wednesday morning.

Because of the illness of one of the jurors, the court went to the jury room to receive the verdict. Will Thomas, the sick juror, had remained in bed during the deliberations, which took place in a rooming house directly across the street from the courthouse.

After a conference with attorneys, Judge Dexter Bush decided court officials could go to the jury room to receive the verdict. Only the judge, the clerk, attorneys and the defendant were permitted in the room.

Day was charged with the murder of Sheriff Walter Harris during a raid by the sheriff on a still eight miles south of here last July. Day testified he fired the shots that killed Harris, but said he acted in self-defense.

The case was given to the jury at 7 Thursday night, but the jury did not begin deliberations until Friday morning.

The first ballot stood 11 for the death penalty, and several succeeding ballots showed the same result. One juror held out against the death penalty, and finally was able to swing the other 7 and a compromise verdict of life imprisonment was reached.

In an interview at the jail following the verdict, Day told newspaper men that "if I had it to do over again I would do the same thing, as I acted only in defense of my own life."

A motion for a new trial will be argued next week, and if this is denied an appeal will be taken to the Arkansas Supreme Court, defense attorneys said. An effort also will be made to have Day released on bail.

Woman Tries to Take Her Life After "Fuss"

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(AP)—A young woman identified as Miss Hattie Hutchinson of Competition, Mo., early Thursday fell three stories at a downtown hotel, inflicting injuries that may prove fatal.

The young woman, police said, recovered consciousness at a hospital for a few minutes and told them she had attempted suicide after a quarrel with Jack F. Jones, 25-year-old traveling salesman, of Birmingham, formerly of Competition.

Jones, arrested on a general holding charge, police said, told them he and the woman had quarreled and he struck her several times.

Powers Awaits Debate for New Murder Trial

CLARKSBURG, W. Va.—(AP)—Unmoved by his conviction for the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke of Northboro, Mass., Harry F. Powers Friday awaited the outcome of arguments for a new trial, practically his only hope of being saved from the gallows.

Arguments for a new trial on the first of the five slayings Powers is accused of perpetrating at his garage in a Clarksburg suburb will be heard Saturday.

Civil War Relics Prized By Hempstead Countian

Personal Effects of Pioneer Relatives Have Been in Possession of C. A. Robertson, Hope, Route 1, for Many Years—Ancestors Lived in Columbia County, Arkansas

Charles Scott in 1861 joined the Confederate army, leaving his home in Columbia county, Arkansas, never to return, for he was killed in action in the battle of Missionary Ridge.

This young farmer, who gave his life for his country, left his worldly possessions in care of a sister, Miss Harriett Scott. She has been dead for a number of years.

Before her death, this woman, who never married, divided a number of the keepsakes, left in her care by her brother, among other relatives.

Among the articles of clothing left was a pair of socks. At the time Charles Scott left home most of the clothing was made of home spun material, but this pair of socks, of which he was particularly proud, he had bought at a store and were among the first machine made socks ever brought to the United States.

This pair of socks is now in the possession of C. A. Robertson, of Hope, route 1, Charles Scott being a great uncle of his. They were given to him about 40 years ago by Miss Scott.

Although these socks are of no market value, Mr. Robertson is proud of them and plans to keep them the remainder of his life, when they will perhaps be handed down to some other member of this family.

In addition to this pair of socks, Mr. Robertson has a small cloth bag, about two inches wide and four inches long. This bag is made of home made home made cloth and was also given to him by his great aunt Harriett.

This little bag has a historical value. In it, during the war, Miss Scott had $1,000 in gold. During a march of the enemy through Columbia county, near the Scott home, this bag, with its contents was placed under a sitting hen, as Miss Scott considered this the safest place in which to hide it from the enemies of her people. Some members of the opposing forces went into the hen house, but it so happened that they did not disturb this sitting hen, and the little cloth bag remained untouched.

The Scotts originated in Georgia, coming to Columbia county, Arkansas, when Charles and Harriett were small children.

Mr. Robertson, who is now the owner of these valuable relics has been a resident of Hempstead county for a number of years and is well known in Hope.

Poultry Group to Hold Meeting Here

All Members and Visitors Invited to Attend This Meeting

Members of the Hempstead County Poultry Association and visitors are cordially invited to attend the regular December meeting of this body on next Monday night at the city hall in Hope.

Several important matters of interest to poultry growers are to be discussed at this meeting.

It is expected that Flint Nichols, director of accrediting work in Arkansas will be present, as well as others connected with the poultry industry of the state.

Columbus Wins Over Spring Hill

Boys and Girls Basketball Teams Play in This City Friday Night

Columbus won two basketball games in Hope Friday night, both boys and girls teams playing.

Their opponents were the Spring Hill teams.

The boys game resulted in a close score and 10 minutes overtime was required to decide this game. Final score in this game was 11 to 13.

Columbus girls out scored the opposing side, this game ending 22 to 8.

Wife of Suicide Ends Own Life by Drowning

GREENSBORO, N. C.—(AP)—Mrs. Austin Smith, whose husband died Thursday night from a bullet wound which police believe was self-inflicted, drowned herself early Friday in a lake near her home.

She was ill and under the care of a nurse. About 3 a. m. she escaped from the nurse, ran from the house and leaped into the water. Her body was recovered.

Some 200 representatives of the American Legion, Legion Auxiliary, the Arkansas Service Bureau, the Veterans Bureau and the staff of the Fort Roots hospital met in a conference and listened to addresses by Edward K. Allis, clinical director of the hospital, and Arthur H. Mountford, reconstruction officer.

Allis said the most successful method of treating the mental patients is through occupational therapy. He said most of the patients are put to work making useful articles. A large number are cured within a very short time, he said.

Sailors Drift to Shore After Ship Grounds and Sinks

Two of Six Men Aboard Small Raft Survives Icy Waters

WAS GERMAN SHIP

Coast Guard Officials Say Ill Fated Boat Was Rum Runner

OSLO, Norway.—(AP)—Two half frozen seamen drifted ashore near Maaloy, a fishing village Saturday on a raft with the bodies of four shipmates on the German owned trawler "Vendus" described by coast guard officials as a rum runner, which grounded and sank.

One life boat sank as it was being launched, drowning six men, who were members of the crew.

The second boat, carrying seven men capsized and men were clinging to the craft as the raft bearing the survivors and four dead drifted out of sight.

Reach Agreement on War Payments

More Time to Be Given Foreign Governments in Making Payments

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—An informal understanding was reached Saturday between the administration and the senate that foreign governments would not be considered at fault in their war debt payments due next Tuesday, if they are not paid, pending formal ratification of the one year moratorium.

Senate leaders of both parties conferred with under secretary Ogden Mills.

Drama Presented on P. T. A. Program

"The Beau of Bath" Features Junior High Session

One of the most artistic programs ever given before the Junior High School P. T. A. was presented Thursday under direction of Miss Lois Ferguson, dramatic teacher at the high school. The feature of the program was a play, "The Beau of Bath," by Constance Mackay. By the end of the program the auditorium was growing dark, and in the gloom the setting of candlelight, an open fire, tapestry and Christmas wreaths, glowed with the real Christmas beauty.

The stage showed a room furnished in the splendor of a former day. The owner and his old butler, also with raiment and speech of an earlier age, were before the Yule fire talking of their young days when the Beau of Bath set fashions in wigs and snuff-boxes for kings and their courts.

On the wall, in a great gilt frame, hung a portrait, lifelike, of a beautiful girl in the court dress of the generation before.

As Christmas dreams grew in the old man's mind the lady stepped from the portrait and herself became part of the dream.

The role of the Beau was played in splendid manner by Billy Bob Herndon. The lady of the portrait was Miss Anne Leiper. Merdin Coop gave a good characterization of the butler, Jepson.

Before the play Carol Carpenter sang a Christmas song. Miss Ferguson read the ever-beautiful story of the shepherds and the angels, as told by Lewis Wallace in "Ben Hur" and Miss Winburn sang the Christmas carol which accompanies it.

The only business transacted was in the form of financial reports. No important motions were introduced, and the session was brief. Miss Winburn's home room won the dollar.

Mrs. Moore is the room mother.

Kansas City in Move to Aid Poor on Christmas

KANSAS CITY.—(AP)—Several clubs have cancelled plans for Christmas parties and the money that would have been spent on evenings of pleasure will be used instead for needy families.

The cancellation movement was initiated by the bond men's club, with 100 members. They abandoned their annual party and voted to "adopt" from 40 to 50 families for the holidays providing their food, fuel and clothing.

Combining the Christmas spirit with a little trade stimulant, business men of other organizations have decided to purchase new clothing and give their older garments to the poor.

Former Minister Sentenced to Life

Found Guilty of Slaying Son in Effort to Collect Insurance

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(AP)—J. M. Williams, former Rochelle, Ga., minister was found guilty Saturday for the slaying of his 19-year-old sailor son, Rafoad Grady Williams.

The jury recommended mercy, which means that a life sentence will be imposed.

Witnesses of the state charged that the father lured his son home on a furlough on a pretext that the youth's sister was ill and then slew him to collect insurance.

Stephens to Speak on Truck Growing

Blevins Man to Attend Meeting at Spring Hill Saturday, Dec. 19

H. M. Stephens, prominent truck grower of Blevins, is to address the Spring Hill Farmers and Business Men's Club Saturday night December 19th at the last named community.

This club was organized recently for the purpose of discussing mutual problems of the people of that section. Stephens was asked to speak to the club to stimulate interest in truck growing during the coming year. He has been unusually successful in securing organized effort among farmers in growing and shipping truck produce in the northern part of the county, and in Patmos, and sponsors of the Spring Hill club hope to derive much benefit from his talk there.

The meeting will be held at the consolidated school house there.

No Dancing Is Prof's Decree for University

ORLANDO, Fla.—(AP)—Dr. Lincoln Hulley, president of Stetson University, a Baptist college at Deland, Fla., won't let students trip the light fantastic toe on the campus and he would have clergymen deny diversion to church members.

Speaking at the Florida Baptist convention here, he said: "I will do my best to stop Stetson University students from dancing if you Baptist pastors will stop members of your churches from dancing."

The boys of Stetson must leave the campus if they dance, he said, and co-eds are not permitted to attend dances anywhere.

Gulf Refining Company Payroll Taken by Group

SOMERVILLE, Mass.—(AP)—Two clerks of the Gulf Refining company were held up Friday and robbed of a $4000 payroll which was being carried by automobile from a bank to the company's Somerville plant. Four men participated in the holdup and one brandished a pistol.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(AP)—Mistrial was declared Saturday by Judge McElroy in the murder trial of William Peterson, negro, charged with the slaying of Miss August Williams, Birmingham society girl.

TOKYO.—(AP)—Tsuyoshi Inukai, following his summons to the Imperial palace Saturday, began the formation of a new cabinet, composed exclusively of Selyukal members.

Extensions Asked on U. S. Land Notes

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Relief for delinquent borrowers from the federal land banks was urged Friday at a conference of 14 Southern Democratic senators.

The group, called together by Senator Smith of South Carolina, ranking member of the Agriculture Committee, sent an appeal of the administration plan for recapitalization of the land banks, a move which was generally favored.

Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, had a bill before Congress last session for relief of delinquents.

"This is an unprecedented situation," said Senator Smith, "brought about by failure of the cash crops to meet the cost of production. This condition can't exist indefinitely, but disposition now of the farmers will leave them unable to help themselves when the depression is over."

Those attending the meeting included Smith, Harrison, and Fletcher and Trammell of Florida; Harris and George of Georgia; McKeller and Hull, Tennessee; Black and Bankhead, Alabama; Byrnes, South Carolina; Morrison, North Carolina; Gore, Oklahoma and Logan Kentucky.

Jury Deliberates Fate of Brothers

Reaches No Verdict in Case of Trio Charged With Murder

FINE BLUFF.—(AP)—Deliberation three hours without reaching a verdict, the jury which heard the murder trial of three brothers for the slaying of their nephew retired at 10:30 p. m. Friday night to resume deliberations Saturday morning.

Arthur, Fred and Floyd Jacks are charged with murder in connection with the killing of Lloyd Hunt, on highway near here in 1930.

Poe Norton, foreman of the jury, told Circuit Judge T. G. Farham that in his opinion no verdict could be reached. Unofficial reports said the jury stood seven to five.

The three brothers took the stand Friday to testify that Arthur Jacks shot Hunt in self-defense after Hunt had stopped the car in which the brothers were riding and had threatened to kill Arthur.

The prosecution contended that the brothers followed Hunt after he had left their home following a quarrel, and that they stopped him on the highway and killed him.

The jury visited the scene of the slaying Friday.

3-Cent Postal Rate Is Recommended

Brown Says Part of Huge Deficit Can Be Overcome by Increase

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A precedent-shattering deficit for the Postoffice Department led its chief Monday to insist again that more ought to be charged to carry letter-mail.

The annual report of Postmaster General Brown showed that department came out $146,066,189 behind last year. This is almost $48,000,000 more than the gross deficit the previous year.

As to a way out, he repeated to President Hoover his recommendation that the two-cent rate for carrying a letter be raised by a half-cent when the letter goes out of the locality. This on the present volume, would bring in $50,000,000 a year additional.

The report went on: "A 2½ cent rate would obviously fall far short of producing adequate revenues at the present time. The deficit for 1931 attributable to strictly postal operations was more than $98,000,000, and if present trends are maintained the net deficit for the current year will be in the neighborhood of $150,000,000. This raises the question whether, in view of the already overtaxed condition of the general treasury, it would not be advisable pending the return of normal conditions, to fix a three-cent rate for letter mail."

Papuan Natives Fashion Own Clubs to Play Golf

CANBERRA.—(AP)—Youthful tribesmen of the Papuan villages who were living in the stone age a few years ago, are now fashioning golf clubs instead of spears and doing the job well.

A year ago a band of enthusiasts, mostly the Australian white officials, created the first Papuan golf links, and the players have utilized the Kanaka youths as caddies.

The caddies arrived with some amazingly fine woods and their irons were examples of extraordinary ingenuity fashioned from pieces of water pipe, hoop iron and scrap metal.

Resider these five, Ohio men will captain the majority of the 36 grid teams in the state next year.

Glannish Soldiers

An American newspaperwoman, recently returned from China, pointed out the other day that the American soldiers stationed at Tientsin spend a good deal of their spare time in the city and also the local news published herein.
 The fact leads one to meditate anew on the strange and seemingly irrational emotions that life in the heart of a soldier.

Orphaned—if one didn't know them—one would imagine
 a little handful of American soldiers in a foreign land would welcome the presence of other soldiers who speak their language. But they don't. They never did, and probably they never will. They feel that antagonism, not because they are Americans, but because they are soldiers, and no one will understand military things unless he understands that universal, jealous bit of clan feeling.

The soldier gives his loyalty chiefly to a fairly small unit. He has his patriotism, of course; but it is his own organization—his battalion, his regiment, or very rarely his division—that stands first in his heart. It is his unit that he understands, and everyone from the outside is a stranger and probably up to no good.

This feeling is a priceless asset to his commander. It is the "esprit de corps" that the French speak of; the feeling of solidarity and unity that welds a group of individuals into a unit, and that accounts far more than lofty sentiments for the fatherland, for most of the bright deeds in military history.

But it does lead to a lot of ill-feeling behind the lines.
 American and British soldiers in China, who may be standing shoulder to shoulder behind the barricades any day, if things go wrong, spend their spare time belaboring one another, and that is the way soldiers have always acted, from the beginning of warfare.

The well-drilled soldier will fight to the death against the enemy of course. But he reserves his private bitterness for his allies, or for the regiment next in line. Soldiers are a glannish lot.

Now, Amateur Bandits

REPORTS from various cities recently indicate that amateur competition is beginning to make itself felt in the holdup racket.

In one city several filling station robberies are traced to a young factory hand who had been out of work for many months. In another, a bank robber is shot and killed and is found to be a hitherto respectable family man who had no work for more than a year. A third city provides a duplicate case. Still another furnishes the case of a robber who shot down a victim in cold blood but who, on arrest, was found to be a jobless workman who had not before engaged in crime.

Cases of this kind throw an entirely new problem on the police and the courts—or, more properly, on society as a whole.

In the ordinary course of events the criminals—especially the bandit, the holdup artist—comes from a special class of society. He is in most cases, the product of a particular district, and the influence of environment and heredity can usually be traced pretty clearly in his career.

He presents one kind of problem. It is a problem which we have not yet entirely solved, and our efforts to deal with it are now and then atrociously imperfect; but at least the problem is more or less familiar, and we have a fairly good idea of what we should do when confronted with it.

But this new kind of robber is something else again. He grows up as a law-abiding citizen. Often his background is excellent. Sheer poverty drives him into crime. Extenuating circumstances are present to a marked degree.

And yet—he is just as much a menace to society as the old kind of bandit. If a man levels a gun at your head and demands your money, it makes precious little difference to you whether he is a professional crook or an ordinary citizen made frantic by hunger. His gun is just as unpleasant a threat, either way.

What are we to do about him? It is a question to puzzle our wisest. We can only see clearly that now, more than ever before, we need to use our utmost wisdom in dealing with our law-breakers.

Lowell Bayles' Sacrifice

THE tragic death of Aviator Lowell R. Bayles is a distinct loss to American aviation; and it emphasizes, in an unmistakable manner the dangers that attend the flyer who makes experimentation with speed planes his field.

Bayles was a speed specialist. Late last summer he won the Thompson trophy race at the National Air Races. Since then he had been trying to break the world's speed record for planes—a record now held by the French, with a mark of 278 and a fraction miles per hour.

This was not mere stunt work. Both commercial and military aviation need faster planes. Men like Bayles show the speed can be obtained; and Bayles' death, unlike the death of a stuntman, was one of those sacrifices that the air demands to demand every so often of the man who would con-

CHAPTER IV

"YOU act as if it were my fault,"
 said Ann, and pushed some more cans.

"No, I don't," Cecil disputed.
 "That's the trouble here, though.
 Everything is horrid and awful all the time, and it never is anybody's fault. I mean, it really isn't ever anybody's fault. Well, I'll go and tell him."

She would have to make a joke
 of it. How should she begin?
 "Frightfully sorry—no, that sounded affected and too true. 'The silliest thing has happened—' Having no food in the house was not a subject for jokes; it was wretched, and humiliating, and humiliated. At least she could refuse his invitation to go somewhere and dine with him. Possibly, probably, he wouldn't ask her. He'd have to ask her—

"Cecily," Ann was holding her arm. "Where are you going?
 What do you mean you are going to
 tell him?"

"That he can't have dinner."
 "I must say! That would be nice, wouldn't it? What would he think of us? The idea! I've found some minced claims—I thought we had a can of them—and I'll make chowder. We'll have a jelly omelet, there are plenty of eggs, and hot muffins. For dessert we'll have nuts and cheese—there's a lot of that good cheese that Mrs. Hill sent from her brother's farm—and I'll toast some crackers. If there's nothing on the table but the chowder when we sit down, Grand will say a short grace. That's a big advantage, and—"

Cecily tossed back her head and laughed and caught Ann in her arms. "Angel! You're so good and so funny and you don't know it!"

forth in the pink velvet blouse and her second best old black skirt, had been, perhaps, not too charming.
 Barry couldn't have been so deferential
 had he thought her merely a silly old thing. And Grand, up to the present painful moment, had been courteous and unquestioning.
 Now, as he cracked the walnuts—
 he had explained that they grew right here on our own trees on our own estate, and why the nuts, trees,
 and estate were superior to all other nuts, trees, and estates—he had begun that inquisitive authoritative way that he liked to assume with young men.

"You have been in the building
 construction business for some time, I take it?"

"No, sir," Barry was as pleasant
 as could be. "Only for about six months. After I left the university—"

"May I ask what university, and
 why you left?"

"Stanford. I'd been graduated, you see—time to go. I went east and was there for two years in newspaper work."

"And what part of the east? And what class of newspaper work did you pursue?"

"New York. Cub reporting, and some magazine work on the side."

"Ah. You will forgive me if I say that it is difficult for me to Cecily tossed back her head and laughed and caught Ann in her arms. "Angel! You're so good and so funny and you don't know it!"

who has, with even slight success,
 embarked upon the sea of journalism should abandon it to become a mere superintendent of building
 construction?"

Cecily's cheeks burned until it was hard to keep her hands away from them. That "mere," how unspeakable of Grand, to say it! Barry was hesitating. Undoubtedly he was determining not to answer at all. She couldn't blame him; he was so sensitive about his health;
 and why should he answer all these personal questions?

"Surely, sir" (the darling, he was going to be polite!), "I know how you feel about it. But, you see, I had some annoying bronchial trouble. The doctor seemed to be positive that an outdoor job in a milder climate was necessary for a winter or two. Portland used to be my home; so I wrote to my uncle here, and he offered me a place. I'd worked for him summers while I was going to Stanford. He'd had some trouble with the man he fired
 —dishonesty—so he's good enough to say that he is glad to have me in the job."

"I SEE. And your health? Has it been restored?"

"Yes, sir, thank you. I'm feeling fine, and the doctor here tells me that it is merely a matter now of

ing out or doors, eating a lot and sleeping a lot—mighty easy course
 to follow."

"Your parents live here, do they?"

"I live here with my uncle and aunt," Barry replied, without a moment's hesitation, and Cecily thrilled to his cleverness. Smart.
 Possibly one couldn't trust a man
 as clever as that, but trust might be allowed to go by the board for—well, admiration, something of the sort. And Grand, sitting stern behind his beard and thinking he had been answered.

"Do you plan a return to your journalistic career?"

Dear heavens, would Grand never stop it? Was Barry going to tell him about the book that he was writing? Barry had said that he had told no one out here except Cecily, and that had been gratifying. Still, since he was brilliant and wonderful and wise enough actually to be writing a book, she did wish he'd take Grand down a peg by boasting of it.

Barry answered, "This northwest country, with its mountains
 and trees and mildness, gets hold
 of a person, don't you think so?
 After a certain length of time out here, it is hard to plan deliberately
 to leave it."

Smart! Right there on the uptake every time. Grand grabbed the bait like a good fellow.

"My boy, this northwest country,
 as you say, is God's own country.
 I use the expression with due reverence, and I trust with due humility.
 This northwest country—"

The telephone bell rang. For no discoverable reason except that it had been installed there in the age of inconveniences the telephone hung high on the dining-room wall.
 Mary-Frances jumped to its summons and stood on tiptoe and said,
 "Hello," in a high and whiny and fussy voice, followed it with,
 "Oh, Ermintrude!" as if Ermintrude had been abroad in ear centries for many years, and said next, "Yes, I have my algebra," which, decoded, meant, "The family is in here, and Every day is a fresh beginning. Every day is the world made new. You who are weary of sorrow and sinning. Here is a beautiful hope for you. All the past things are past and over; The tasks are done and the tears are shed.

Yesterday's errors let yesterday cover; Yesterday now is a part of forever, Bound up in a sheaf, which he holds tight.

With glad days, and sad days, and that day which never Shall visit us more with their bloom and blight.

Every day is a fresh beginning; Listen, soul, to the glad refrain, In spite of old sorrow and older sinning. Take heart with the day, and begin again.—Selected.

On Sunday evening, promptly at 7:30 o'clock at the First Methodist Church, the Friday Music Club will present excerpts from the oratorio, "The Messiah," by Handel, under the direction of Mrs. R. A. Boyett. The organ prelude will be played by Mrs. Charles Wilkin, "The Messiah" music by Mrs. Ralph Routh, with Mrs. C. C. McNeill at the piano and Mrs. O. A. Graves reading the text. The music club cordially invites the music-loving public to attend this program, and it is hoped that everyone attending, will be in their seats by 7:30, in order that this beautiful and inspirational work may be given without distraction.

Mrs. A. K. Holloway, and Misses Gertrude Taylor and Elizabeth Taylor spent Saturday visiting in Newport.

Miss Bertha Turner McRae of Henderson Teachers College, Arkadelphia, arrived Friday night to spend the week end visiting with home folks. Benjamin Stringer will spend next week visiting with Talbot Field, Jr., en route to his home in Galveston, Texas, from school in Suanee, Tenn.

The December meeting of the Pat Leburn Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edgar Bryant on South Elm street with Misses Zenobia Reed and Mary Harrison and Mrs. H. D. Lipscomb as associate hostesses. The meeting was presided by the president. Following a short business period, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. C. S. Lowthorp, program chairman, who presented the program with the Christmas spirit. "The Story of Bethlehem" was read by Miss Ferguson, followed by a vocal number by Miss Martha Jean Winburn. Christmas carols were sung by the daughters and gifts from a beautifully decorated Christmas tree were distributed by Mrs. H. D. Lipscomb. For his charming occasion, the Bryant home was very attractive in its Christmas decorations and the hostesses served a most tempting salad plate with hot tea. Guests for the afternoon were Mrs. W. A. Bowen, Mrs. J. M. Houston, Mrs. J. P. Cox and the Misses Hannah of Ozan.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Kinsor, Miss Margaret Kinsor and Junior will be Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hinton in Texarkana.

Crawford and Gable
Are Romantic Team

The romantic team of Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in a dramatic story of a factory girl who becomes the toast of Park Avenue makes an engrossing talkie of "Possessed," which will come to the Saenger Theatre for two days, starting Sunday.

The picture was adopted from the Edgar Selwyn stage hit, "The Mirage" and was directed by Clarence Brown, last filmed the Norma Shearer success, "A Free Soul."

Miss Crawford's role as the girl who turns down the man she loves in order to leave him free to become the governor of his state, gives her every opportunity for a display of her dramatic prowess.

Her transformation from a plain factory worker to a member of the leisure class entails sixteen costume changes. The story also entails a number of spectacular scenic backdrops.

The star sings a new song in this picture, "How Long Will It Last?" which title in itself gives away much of the plot.

Gable is seen as the candidate for governor. Wallace Ford, popular New York stage leading man makes his screen debut in this picture as Gable's rival for the affections of the heroine. The supporting cast also includes the amusing Skeets Gallagher, Frank Conroy, Marjorie White, John Mijan and Clara Blandick.

You'll Enjoy Your Sunday Drive Better After Church

When you gain an hour of driving by starting out before church you sacrifice something that can never be regained—an hour of peace and communion that is priceless. In our modern world of whirl, bustle and hurry the hours spent in the quiet, soul refreshing atmosphere of church are all too few. Don't waste them for a brief span of idle pleasure.
